been utilized by the Miami Conventions Coalition during its assembly at Flamingo Park at about 4 P. M. He stated that they worked on the truck in Flamingo Park taking the portable generator off a trailer and mounting it on the back of the truck. He said they also worked on the amplifying equipment.

Late in the afternoon of August 23, 1972, after the work had been completed on the truck, it was loaded up with some people who had been recruited by FORCADE in Flamingo Park to carry Zippie flags on sticks. FORCADE loaded these people on the back of the truck as they had previous problems on the night before from individuals beside the truck who had cut the electrical cables to the equipment.

[redacted] said that while at Flamingo Park when the truck was loaded up the late afternoon of August 23, 1972, FORCADE was driving, CINDY was in the cab with him and [redacted] got in the cab on the passenger side. TOM FORCADE drove them across the park in the truck and stopped at the exit to remove some barricades. [redacted] got out of the cab of the truck in order to stop the traffic for the truck to exit from Flamingo Park. [redacted] got in the cab of the truck with FORCADE and [redacted] got on the back of the truck in order to sing on the microphone while "The Gooks" played their instruments along the way. "The Gooks" and [redacted] performed from the back of the truck en route until the police stopped the truck and arrested FORCADE. [redacted] said at this time the only persons in the cab of the truck were FORCADE, who had been driving, [redacted] and CINDY ORNSTEEN. [redacted] said he was on the back of the truck.

The police immediately surrounded the truck. FORCADE put the truck in reverse in an attempt to avoid the police, but he was unsuccessful.

The next thing which took place was a couple of the people with the Zippie flags raised the sticks and the police reacted by one of them immediately telling [redacted] who was by the microphone to tell them that they just wanted the sticks. [redacted] announced over the microphone

"Don't hassle. There's no hassle. They just want these sticks". [redacted] said the sticks were then given to the police.

At about the same time, a policeman poured the gasoline out of the red 5 gallon round gasoline can which was on the back of the truck as fuel for the portable generator. He poured it on the ground incidentally soaking some toilet paper rolls which were in a paper bag. [redacted] observed FORCADE being taken out of the truck and arrested by the police. The truck was still running. [redacted] was still on the back of the truck and FORCADE was being arrested for having no driver's license according to the remarks of one of the policemen who said, "Look what we have here. No driver's license".

[redacted] got off the back of the truck and went toward the front of the truck and saw [redacted] also being taken by the police out of the cab of the truck. The police took [redacted] over towards where FORCADE was being held.

Immediately after this a police sergeant demanded the rental papers for the truck. [redacted] became enraged with this police officer by [redacted]

[redacted] The police sergeant said that they were going to impound the truck. [redacted] produced the [redacted]

[redacted] The police sergeant asked [redacted] if he had a helmet and [redacted] stated that he did not and asked him why. The police sergeant said, "You're going to need one if you are going in there", meaning the demonstration area at the Republican National Convention Hall. He asked [redacted] for his driver's license which [redacted] produced and he then released the truck to [redacted] said he drove the truck away from the arrest scene on August 23, 1972, when TOM FORCADE and [redacted] had been arrested.

[redacted] observed a photograph with a white female sitting in the cab identified by him as CINDY ORNSTEEN. He identified himself in the foreground of this photograph looking at two police officers with helmets. The police officers have their backs to the camera. [redacted] said that he could not be certain, but he believed the one on the left whom he was looking at was the police sergeant and the one who was in the foreground was the younger officer who had accompanied him when he had produced the lease papers for the truck.

[redacted] again viewed photographs of the Allstate Motor Oil can and the three vegetable cans, two of which had been found to contain incendiary material. [redacted] said that during the above incident he did not see the police take these items out of the truck. He stated that he had not ever seen any of these items at any time and he had not ever seen these items on the truck. He did not hear anyone allege that there was any bomb or incendiary device involved in this event. He said that he did not see any truck arrive and depart with any of these devices.

[redacted] said that he had no knowledge if there was any question of possible violation regarding any incendiary devices being in this truck with the exception of the remark which he had heard by/policeman when he poured the gasoline out on the rolls of toilet paper and said something about incendiary devices. He said when he was first contacted by the FBI about this matter involving incendiary devices, he thought that the incident involved the pouring of the gasoline on the toilet paper rolls.

[redacted] observed a photograph of the truck taken from the rear and a photograph of the truck taken from the side of the back of the truck. He pointed out in the photograph of the side of the rear of the truck two individuals had Zippie flags hanging over the side of the truck from which the sticks had been removed by the police. He pointed out in the photograph of the rear of the truck that one of these flags is still hanging over the side of the truck, one flag is over the lap of an individual sitting on the rear of the truck and there are no Zippie flags being displayed on sticks which had been removed by the police during the incident. He advised he believed that he was [redacted] when this photograph was taken and it was, therefore, departing from the arrest scene on August 23, 1972, when the photograph was taken.

[redacted] had no

[redacted] stated that he was there on this occasion with a rock music band known as "The Gooks". He said the group was together for the purpose of entertainment at Flamingo Park and outside the convention hall during the Republican National Convention held at Miami Beach, Florida.

He stated that on this day in August of 1972, during the Republican National Convention, the band was on the truck going from Flamingo Park, Miami Beach, to the convention hall in Miami Beach. He identified a photograph of the truck and stated that this was the same truck.

He said the plan on this occasion was to go and set up equipment and play music with the rock band in front of the convention hall from the back of the truck. He said the only purpose to his knowledge for this event was for entertainment as there were no plans to have any confrontation or take part in a demonstration other than to provide entertainment with the band.

[redacted] He said he never observed any incendiary devices in the truck. [redacted] was shown photographs of an Allstate Motor Oil can along with three smaller cans and another photograph of the same Allstate Motor Oil can along with one smaller can having a wick protruding from it. [redacted] said he had never seen any of these objects in the truck which were shown in the photographs. He said he had never seen these devices.

He advised that the truck had been pulled over by motorcycle police who were in both lanes of the street, being possibly 13 or 14 of them. He said in his opinion the police appeared to be looking for the truck. He said the police asked TOM FORCADE for his driver's license and he did not have a license. [redacted] advised that the police took FORCADE out of the truck and to one side. [redacted] said he Trooper came over to the truck and asked him if he were driving and the State Trooper had at least about ten other police officers around him. He said he believed they were all State Troopers.

[redacted] said he told the high ranking police officer that he had not operated the truck. He told the police officer that the person who had operated the truck had been arrested. [redacted] said the truck was not running, but the keys were in the ignition switch. [redacted] stated that the police officer told him that [redacted]

The police officer took [redacted] over to the area where TOM FORCADE was being held and turned him over to another police officer. [redacted] said he and FORCADE were beside a building where they were told by the police to stay. He stated that they waited for a while, at least about 15 minutes, at that location, but he could not observe the truck at that time. He stated that he and TOM FORCADE were both taken over to a police patrol car and put in the rear seat of the police patrol car. He advised that from this location he could then observe the truck, but he did not recall seeing if anyone went in to it or not.

He advised that about 15 minutes after being placed in the rear of the police vehicle where he could then observe the truck, he saw a police officer and a plainclothesman coming from the open door of the cab of the truck. He said the plainclothes officer had a gun on his hip. He stated that they were coming from the passenger side of the truck carrying a can with what appeared to be a candle having a wick protruding from it. He said he did not actually see them take it out of the truck. He said that when he first observed them, they were walking away from the area of the open door of the truck as though they may have taken it out of the truck, but he did not actually observe them take it out of the truck.

[redacted] advised that the can they were carrying appeared to be the same as the one contained in the photograph having the Allstate Motor Oil can and one smaller vegetable-type can with a wick protruding from it.

[redacted] stated that the police officers treated this can as if it were a bomb. He said they brought it to the curb near the area of the patrol car where he and FORCADE were being held. He stated that they cleared some people away from the area around the candle device, but left him and FORCADE near it sitting in the back of the police car. He said that subsequently a truck arrived and took the device away.

[redacted] advised that he could not ever recall seeing this candle-type device in the cab before he observed it with the police officers. He advised that he has never observed the other three items, the Allstate Motor Oil can and the other two smaller cans, in the photograph in the cab of the truck or in the area around the truck or at any time.

He said that he had a driver's license the whole time during which he had been arrested. He stated that during the arrest he had shown the license to the police officer believed to be a State Trooper, who had said to him, "Why didn't you show it to me when I asked you for it" and he continued to write out the summons and arrest him for not having a driver's license.

[redacted] home address, [redacted]
[redacted] was located and interviewed in the vicinity of King High School, Sligh and 56th Street, Tampa, Florida. Prior to the interview, he was advised of the identity of the interviewing Agent and the reason for the interview. He furnished the following information:

[redacted] advised that during the Republican National Convention, Miami Beach, in August of 1972, he was invited by a rock group called "The Gooks" to work with them as a sound technician. He said there was no pay involved but because of the experience of participating with the group, and the opportunity to observe what might happen during the convention, he accepted the offer.

He said on the late afternoon of August 23, 1972, "The Gooks" were going to play at the site of the convention for publicity reasons. In order to get to the convention site from Flamingo Park, where they were staying, they used a rental flat bed truck. He said the equipment for the band was loaded on the back of the flat bed truck and he and the rest of the members of the band were on the back of the truck watching the equipment when the truck traveled from Flamingo Park. He remembers that TOM FORCADE was driving the truck and to the best of his knowledge, [redacted] was also in the cab with FORCADE. He said he had no recollection of anyone else being in the cab of the truck during the trip to the convention site. [redacted] said he definitely remembered that [redacted] a member of the rock band, was in the back of the truck with himself and the other members of the band during the entire trip from Flamingo Park. Prior to arriving at the convention site, the truck was pulled over by police on motorcycles, at an unrecalled location. FORCADE was taken from the cab of the truck and a conversation ensued between FORCADE and several police officers. He could not hear what was being said between FORCADE and the police. He said, at about this same time, the back of the truck which held the equipment for the group was searched by police. The only thing found in the back, which was taken, was a red gasoline can filled with gasoline which was used by the band to run a generator. The generator was used to power the musical equipment. He said the gas in the can was poured out on the street.

[redacted] advised that during the time they were stopped, he was busy watching the equipment on the back of the truck and never became concerned with what was happening in the vicinity of the truck cab. He said he never saw any police remove cans of any kind from the cab and he was not aware that anything was taken from the truck other than the gas can. He viewed a photograph of an Allstate Motor Oil can and three small vegetable type cans and advised that he never saw these cans before or after being stopped. He said he had no business in the cab and had not looked in the cab prior to leaving Flamingo Park. He also said no one had talked about making or using any "incendiary devices" during his stay at the camp.

He said to the best of his recollection, when FORCADE was taken from the truck by the police, [redacted] who was also in the cab, moved over behind the wheel of the truck as if to drive the truck. He then was also taken from the cab by the police, and a conversation, which he could not hear, ensued. He said ultimately both FORCADE and [redacted] were arrested and taken away by the police in a police car for a charge which he heard was failure to have a driver's license. He said he later learned that [redacted] was released by a judge when he produced a driver's license. He did not know what happened to FORCADE. He was shown a photograph of a white female sitting in the cab of the truck and advised that he knew this individual as CINDY but did not know her full name. He could not remember if this girl was in the cab during the trip since he did not see her. He did state that she had been with FORCADE most of the time since he had been at the camp.

After the truck was searched and FORCADE and [redacted] were taken away, an unrecalled individual drove the truck on to the convention site.

[redacted] said that he is originally from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, and his family and [redacted] reside at that address, but he is a student at the Florida Technological University, Orlando, residing in Altamonte Springs.

[redacted] stated that he had not seen [redacted] since they had returned from the RNC in Miami Beach.

[redacted] stated that after he had gotten [redacted] to join the group, "The Gooks", it consisted of [redacted] and [redacted] who was the singer. He said [redacted] had obtained some other people to go along with the group to Miami as equipment handlers. He advised that [redacted] went as an equipment handler; and an individual whose first name was [redacted] but whose last name was not recalled, from Tampa, Florida; [redacted] from Maitland, Florida; and another unrecalled white male, who had blond hair and a mustache, were also members of the equipment crew.

He recalled that [redacted] was also in the group as an equipment handler.

[redacted] advised that he left for Miami Beach on or about Saturday, August 19, 1972, before the beginning of the RNC started there on Monday. He advised that [redacted] and himself rented a Ryder truck in Orlando, Florida, and drove it down with the band instruments and the sound system equipment. He advised that [redacted] had gone down the day before and the other members of the group came down on the next day after he arrived. He said they all met at the James Hotel, Miami Beach.

[redacted] said that someone, but he did not recall who, had obtained a flat bed rental truck from the Ryder company, in Miami, in order to set up a platform from which the band could perform in front of the RNC hall.

He said that they played from the truck in Flamingo Park on Sunday night, and from the truck in front of the RNC hall on Tuesday night.

[redacted] said that [redacted] had met with TOM FORCADE of the Zippies at the DNC, and [redacted] said that FORCADE had contacts who could help get publicity for the rock group venture. He said that FORCADE was with the group on Sunday and Tuesday evening when it performed. [redacted] said FORCADE had a girl friend whose name was then unknown to him, who was with him on several of the occasions when he saw FORCADE.

On Wednesday, August 23, 1972, the day the President of the United States was to speak and the last day of the RNC, there were rumors that a demonstration was to be held in front of the RNC hall.

"The Gooks" and the equipment crew met FORCADE and his girl friend at the Flamingo Park in Miami Beach, where they got the truck and the equipment ready to play on that evening.

They left Flamingo Park for the RNC hall site late in the afternoon, probably being in the vicinity of 6:00 PM. As the truck departed, TOM FORCADE drove, [redacted] equipment man, was in the cab, and FORCADE's girl friend was in the cab, to the best of [redacted] recollection. [redacted] said that he could not recall any one else being in the cab of the truck. [redacted] stated that he was on the back of the truck, with [redacted] and other individuals from the equipment crew, but he could not recall which members of the equipment crew were on the truck at that time as some of them had been sent ahead to the RNC hall site in order to receive the truck when it arrived. He said several persons, who were unknown to him, were on the truck with Zippie flags. He said they jumped onto the truck just before it left Flamingo Park for the hall. FORCADE drove the truck and [redacted] sang. The truck went directly toward the hall, and [redacted] did not believe

b7C

anyone got into or out of the cab of the truck along the way.

A short distance before reaching the RNC hall, the truck was stopped by the police, who converged upon it in great numbers. They approached the truck with riot batons in hand. They immediately encircled the truck. [redacted] was on the back of the truck, and the aforementioned persons, FORCADE, his girl friend, and [redacted] were in the cab of the truck when it was stopped by the police. Some of the police came to the back of the truck and demanded the sticks from the Zippie flags, but, after taking the sticks, the flags were turned back to them. At about the same time, another policeman took the gasoline can from the back of the truck and dumped it into the gutter. The gasoline can contained gasoline for the portable generating equipment. This gasoline can had not been in the cab of the truck.

[redacted] observed a photograph showing an Allstate Motor Oil can and advised that this was not the can that had been taken by the policeman and dumped into the gutter. He advised that he had never seen this can, in the photograph, on the truck, in the cab of the truck, and he didn't recall ever having seen it in his life.

[redacted] said that about the same time these events were taking place, some other policemen went to the cab of the truck and FORCADE was taken out of the truck. [redacted] was also taken out of the truck by police. One officer had a vehicle storage order form and he said "This truck is under arrest", causing him to believe it was to be impounded. [redacted] said [redacted] was talking to one of the officers about impounding the truck. It was said by someone in the crowd that FORCADE and [redacted] had been arrested for driving without a license. Some other rumors overheard during the incident indicated FORCADE, who did not have a license, had tried to get out from under the steering wheel of the truck and [redacted] had tried to assume the appearance of having been the driver. [redacted] did not recall seeing FORCADE and [redacted] any further.

[redacted] did not recall ever seeing a police officer take anything from the cab of the truck. He only recalled seeing the officer take the gasoline can for the portable generator and dump it and then return the can to the truck..

[redacted] was shown a photograph of an Allstate Motor Oil can and a smaller can having a wick protruding from it. [redacted] said he had never seen these items on the truck. He said that to the best of his recollection, he had never seen these items before. [redacted] was shown another photograph of the Allstate Motor Oil, along with the can with the wick protruding from it, and two other smaller cans. [redacted] said that he had never seen these items on the truck, and he had never seen them before.

[redacted] was shown a photograph of the side view of the cab of the truck. He identified the truck as the same one on which he had been riding during the above mentioned incident. He identified the individual sitting in the cab of the truck as FORCADE's girl friend. In the center foreground, having long dark hair and a mustache talking with a police officer he identified [redacted]. He stated [redacted] appeared in the photograph wearing a white tee-shirt, bending over with his back to the camera on the back of the truck. He identified LANE by his guitar strap across his back.

[redacted] was shown a photograph of the rear view of the truck. He advised, after examining the photograph, that it was apparently departing from the scene of the above mentioned arrest of FORCADE and [redacted]. He noted that it apparently took place after the incident ended, as the Zippie flags were no longer on the sticks, which had been taken by the police. He advised the individuals sitting on the back of the truck were unknown to him, and they were alleged to have been Zippies picked up at Flamingo Park before the trouble. He identified [redacted] wearing a white tee-shirt, and standing near the right rear of the truck in this photograph.

[redacted] was shown a photograph of a white male with his back to the wall, wearing no shoes. [redacted] identified this individual as TOM FORCADE. He identified the head of [redacted] as being the third from the

[redacted] was shown a photograph of the rear seat of an automobile and he identified TOM FORCADE sitting in the rear seat of the car.

[redacted] advised that he had never seen the devices in the above photographs and he had never heard FORCADE, FORCADE's girl friend, [redacted] or any of the other persons mentioned above, on this venture, make any reference or plans to the use of incendiary devices or the devices in the photograph, or make any plans for any kind of violence.

[redacted] advised that he and the members of "The Gooks" were not members of the Zippies, and he had never seen TOM FORCADE before this venture, which was only for the purpose of obtaining publicity.

with or any connection with "The Zippies" in Miami Beach, Florida. He stated he believed the individual who was a backer recalled as being [redacted] ran a half-way house in Miami, Florida. He stated that with the money from the backers they rented a flat bed truck for the band to perform from in front of the Republican National Convention Hall in Miami Beach, Florida. [redacted] said TOM FORCADE was brought into this matter by [redacted]. He said [redacted] alleged FORCADE knew a lot of producers in the recording industry and people who wrote for rock magazines such as "Rolling Stone" and FORCADE could get the band publicity through these contacts.

[redacted] said that the members of "The Cooks" and a few, two or three, equipment handlers all stayed at the James Hotel, Miami Beach, near the Republican National Convention Hall. He advised that the band members and the equipment handlers had nothing to do with TOM FORCADE and the Zippies. [redacted] advised that as they approached an area on Miami Beach known as the Mill which was shortly before arriving at the Convention Hall site, about 35 or 40 policemen, many of them being on motorcycles stopped the truck. He said the police immediately grabbed the gasoline can off the back of the truck which had been for extra fuel for the portable generating equipment. He said they dumped the gasoline out. He said they appeared as though they would take the can and [redacted] protested stating that he had rented the generator and the can belonged with the equipment. He said the police then returned the can and it was placed back on the truck.

[redacted] viewed a photograph of an Allstate Motor Oil can and stated that the gasoline can which had been dumped by the police was not the same can as the Allstate Motor Oil can in the photograph. He stated the gasoline can which was dumped by the police had been round and red and it had a flexible spout on it.

[redacted] stated that after they returned the empty gasoline can the police took sticks from the kids on the truck who had Zippie flags attached to them and then gave the flags back.

[redacted] advised that other policemen who were up by the cab of the truck took TOM FORCADE out of the truck and took him away. He stated that he did not see TOM FORCADE any further.

[redacted] stated that the police also arrested [redacted] [redacted] who was the third person in the truck cab with FORCADE and CINDY whose last name is unrecalled. He stated that CINDY was TOM FORCADE's girl friend.

[redacted] advised that [redacted] had nothing to do with TOM FORCADE prior to this event and he was not a Zippie, but he was a member of the equipment crew of "The Gooks". He stated he believed [redacted] may be from Winter Park, Florida. [redacted] advised that he had not known [redacted] before the groups had been formed for this event and he has not seen him since the Republican National Convention except on one occasion when he observed him on the campus of Seminole Junior College. He said that he did not believe [redacted] was a student there.

[redacted] advised that [redacted] had been arrested and charged with driving the truck without a license. [redacted] said he had not observed [redacted] to drive the truck on this event as FORGADE had been its operator. [redacted] said the charges against FORGADE were unknown to him.

[redacted] said that after FORGADE and [redacted] had been taken away from the truck it was released to [redacted] who had rented the truck and [redacted] drove it toward the convention hall. He said that after departing the arrest scene the truck stopped in a parking lot across from the convention hall for awhile, possibly five to ten minutes, and then proceeded to the area in front of the convention hall where the truck was parked.

[redacted] said the group played a few songs. He said the crowd seemed hostile toward their music. [redacted] advised that at this point he, [redacted] who resides on [redacted] Altamonte Springs, Florida, and [redacted] the drummer, packed up their instruments and left because tear gas was being thrown by the police.

[redacted] said that he had not observed the police or anyone taking these items away from the scene where the police had stopped the truck. [redacted] Sarasota, Florida, was advised of the identity of the interviewing Agent and the nature of the inquiry. [redacted] voluntarily furnished the following information:

In August, 1972, he was playing the drums with a rock group called "The Cooks" with [redacted] (Last Name Unknown), and [redacted]. The group had been booked through [redacted] to play on the back of a truck at the Republican National Convention in Miami, Florida. It was anticipated that this exhibition might bring a lot of publicity to the group.

As the group was going to the location, which he believes was on Washington Street, the truck was being driven by THOMAS FORCADE. All of "The Cooks" were on the back of the truck, along with two or three of the stage hands. The stage hands he can recall are [redacted] and [redacted].

He recalls that the wife or girl friend of FORCADE was along, but he does not recall where she was. He did not know her name, however, identified a photograph of [redacted] as being FORCADE's wife or girl friend.

While enroute to the convention center, the police stopped the truck and arrested FORCADE. [redacted] recalls that FORCADE did not have a driver's license. Then someone else got into the cab of the truck to drive it away, and he was also arrested for no driver's license. After this, [redacted] drove the truck off. When the truck was first stopped by the police, FORCADE was driving. [redacted] does not know who, if anyone, was in the cab of the truck with FORCADE at that time. It is his recollection that maybe FORCADE's wife or girl friend may have been in the cab, or else was walking alongside the truck. All of "The Cooks" including [redacted] (LNU), [redacted] as well as [redacted] were on the back of the truck.

[redacted] said he does not know [redacted] by name. He was shown a photograph of [redacted] and said his face looked familiar, and he could remember seeing [redacted] helping set up the stage, but he did not know his name. He does not recall where [redacted] was when the police stopped the truck. He also said he cannot say for certain that [redacted] was the second person arrested for no driver's license, as there was a lot of confusion and people in the area during that time.

In view of the location where "The Gooks" planned to perform, they had a portable gasoline generator on the back of the truck to supply power for their sound equipment. They had a large can of gasoline on the back of the truck for this generator. It is his recollection that this large gas can was sitting near the front of the truck bed, next to the cab.

[redacted] was exhibited two photographs labeled "Unknown and Unidentified Devices" depicting Alistate Motor Oil can and smaller cans with some type of wick in the top. He stated he did not see any of these items, or similar items, at any location on the truck. He said if they were in the cab of the truck he would not have seen them, since he was never in the cab and did not look in it.

Haitland, Florida, voluntarily appeared at the office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Orlando, Florida.

[redacted] advised that he had been present at the Republican National Convention, August, 1972, during which time TOM FORGADE had been arrested while operating a truck.

[redacted] advised that he is unemployed and that he had been born [redacted] at Berkley, California. He advised that he is a high school graduate, having a GED diploma and nine hours of junior college work.

[redacted] advised that shortly before the Republican National Convention at Miami Beach, Florida, [redacted] had formed a rock music band called "The Gooks" and he took it to Miami Beach in order to get publicity for the group on the television cameras deployed at the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach.

[redacted] said that on the afternoon of the day on which President NIXON came to the convention it was indicated during conversation that TOM FORGADE had arranged to park a rented flat bed truck, from which the band would play, across the street from the convention hall, where it would be exposed to the television cameras. [redacted] said that he was not certain, but he believed [redacted] had rented the truck as he has later said that he had rented the generator for the electrical instruments and the public address system. [redacted] advised that the band members of "The Gooks" and the equipment men all stayed at the James Hotel on Miami Beach.

[redacted] said that on that day the truck was taken to Flamingo Park with the band members and equipment men on it. He said FORGADE was driving the truck and CINDY ORNSTEIN, FORGADE's girlfriend, was in the cab with FORGADE. He said [redacted] who is a friend of his, [redacted] was in the cab of the truck with FORGADE and [redacted] He said that [redacted] was on the back of the truck taking care of the equipment. [redacted] said that as the truck departed with the group on it from Flamingo Park en route to the Convention Hall, he went back to the James Hotel on an errand. He said that [redacted] was to sing over the microphone from the back of the truck while it was en route and his throat bothered him. He said that he went back to the hotel in order to obtain some Southern Comfort whiskey for [redacted] throat.

[redacted] said that he met the truck and the group after it had departed Flamingo Park at a point which was about one traffic signal before the point where it had been stopped by the police. He said the truck had stopped for a red light and he jumped onto the truck. He said the truck was en route to the convention hall area when the police stopped it. He stated that when he got onto the truck, just before it was stopped by the police, TOM FORCADE was driving the truck, CINDY ORNSTEIN, and [redacted] were in the cab of the truck. He said [redacted] was still on the back of the truck.

[redacted] advised that about the next traffic light after he got on to the truck, Florida State Troopers and Miami Beach Policemen stopped the truck. He said there were a lot of policemen who surrounded the truck.

[redacted] said the police told him that they were taking all potential weapons and they took the sticks which had ZIPPIE flags on them.

He said the police took a five gallon can of gasoline off the back of the truck which was sitting next to the portable generator. He said the gasoline was for the operation of the portable generator which operated the amplifying equipment. He said the police poured the gasoline from the can onto the ground. [redacted] said the police started to take the can but [redacted] who was on the back of the truck, objected and they returned the can to the truck. [redacted] described the can as being a large orange-red five gallon gasoline can with a flexible hose on it to pour from. LEWIS said a policeman took a candle of CINDY's which was in the cab of the truck. He said the candle was in a can which looked like a coffee can. He said the candle appeared to be the same one as appears in a photograph next to the Wailstate Motor Oil can.

[redacted] said that these type candles were common among the campers in Flamingo Park and they were used for lighting while camping in the park. He said that they were frequently sold in the park for that purpose. He said that on several occasions on about the previous two days, CINDY, had been seen in Flamingo Park carrying this candle lighted and using it for light. He said it also had an incense smell to it when it was burning.

[redacted] said the policeman took the candle away and his attention was distracted by the arrest of [redacted] therefore, he did not know what became of the candle.

[redacted] said that TOM FORCADE had just been arrested for operating the truck without a license. He said the police pulled TOM FORCADE out of the cab and [redacted] slid over in the front seat of the cab behind the steering wheel. The vehicle did not move and [redacted] did not operate it, but the police checked his driver's license and arrested him because it was not a chauffeur's license. LEWIS observed FORCADE and [redacted] being taken away by the police. The police then released the truck and it went on to the convention hall site. [redacted] believed the truck was driven away from the arrest scene by [redacted] who then turned it over to some unrecalled individual who said he had a chauffeur's license in order that [redacted] could get back on the back of the truck and sing.

At the convention site, [redacted] said the band attempted to play while driving down the beach side of the convention center, but demonstrators wearing VVAW and SDS buttons kept reaching into the side of the truck and unplugging the wires and cutting the wires to the electrical equipment. He said other demonstrators jumped onto the truck and took over the public address system. [redacted] helped the musicians put their instruments away for protection and they returned to the James Hotel. [redacted] later returned to the truck and assisted [redacted] in getting it back to the James Hotel.

[redacted] said that he never at any time ever saw the Allstate Motor Oil can on the truck or at any other place. He advised that he had not been in the cab of the truck on that date. [redacted] said there had been some bolts and nails in some cans on the truck which had been used in order to construct the platform from which the band was to play on the back of the truck. He said the construction was on about the day previous to the arrest of FORCADE. He said they only contained bolts with nuts, nails and electrical plugs for the electrical amplifying equipment. He said the cans did not contain any other substance which would be similiar to that appearing in the other two small cans appearing in the photographs with the candle and the Allstate Motor Oil can. He said the can which appears to be partially crushed in the photographs appeared to be somewhat similiar to one which had contained the nails on the truck during the construction of the platform, but he could not be certain that it is the same can. He said that if it were the same can it did not have the material in it that appeared dark in the photograph.

[redacted] said that he had never heard any plans by FORCADE, CINDY ORNSTEEN, [redacted] or anyone in the group to use incendiary devices or to utilize the devices in the pictures. He advised that the event was only for the purpose of attracting the television media to the band. [redacted] identified the following individuals who were connected with "The Gooks", and the equipment crew. [redacted] the lead singer of "The Gooks" who resides at [redacted] Maitland, Florida; [redacted] the guitarist for "The Gooks" who resides in Maitland, Florida; [redacted] guitarist, a friend of [redacted] is a student at Florida Technological University, Orlando, Florida; [redacted] the drummer, Orlando, Florida, but his address and whereabouts are unknown and no telephone number is known for him. [redacted] said that he has known [redacted] at Winter Park High School, and he believed he graduated last year. [redacted] equipment

[redacted] (Last Name Unknown) who is believed to be a ZIPPIE from up North and a close friend of TOM FORCADE. This individual had visited TOM FORCADE and CINDY at the James Hotel. He is described as a white male, about 6'1", wearing glasses, having medium brown, shoulder length hair, thin build, weighing about 185. He had a fair complexion, no mustache or beard.

[redacted] advised that about ten persons who are unknown to him and wearing ZIPPIE buttons had ZIPPIE flags on the truck, but he could not identify them.

[redacted] advised that he had never been a member of the ZIPPIES and the persons known to him in the band, "The Gooks", were not ZIPPIES.

[redacted] observed a photograph of the side view of the cab of the truck containing a white female sitting in the cab. He identified this white female as CINDY and the individual having long dark hair and a mustache talking to policemen in the foreground as [redacted] observed a side view of the back of the truck and stated that from left to right he was the first person on the left with a white T-shirt having his back to the camera and his hair in a pony tail. He advised the third person from the left, [redacted] was wearing a cosmic T-shirt. He stated that [redacted] is from Tampa, and [redacted]
